We're not going back to Bethany tonight. John and I are looking for a place to eat
in Jerusalem.

Something's different.
We are looking for a
room by following someone with a water jar - this isn't usual. What's happening?

They're setting up the Upper Room for a meal.
With all the people
staying I will be sleeping
in Gethsemane.

The others have arrived.
It looks like there will just
be the twelve of us with Jesus.

We've arrived and
gone straight upstairs.
No-one is washing feet.

We are sitting together
now - but it is just the disciples and Jesus.

They're sitting upstairs.
This is the famous prophet and teacher from Galilee.

Jesus has just washed everyone's feet. I feel awkward that Jesus had to do this; he is setting a tremendous example.

I've just taken up some food.
The house servants aren't being involved.

The Passover starts today -
we've just about collected the last of the leaven to be got rid of.

Seeing that the house is so full, I'm off to sleep in one of the buildings at Gethsemane.

At the end of the meal
we shared a loaf of bread and a cup of wine. It sounded like a sacrifice is going to happen.

Judas has gone out.
It's dark; what can he
be going to do?
Perhaps some of the market stalls are still open.

We're about to leave -
this time we're going to Gethsemane. Perhaps
we'll spend the night there.
