It's going dark. There must be a storm or something coming.

The sky has gone dark.
It did it quite quickly but I don't know how it happened. The soldiers are trying to get lamps.

It's all gone dark.
I'm going to stay
here until the light
comes back.

It's still dark - we can't see much and we have moved further away from the cross. The victims are clearly weaker than they were.

At least the group of us
are all together now -
Mary the wife of Cleopas,
Joanna and I never left;
Salome's come back,
so has John.

The darkness may be
lifting - I'm going down
to Golgotha to see
what is happening.
